Why BA (Hons.) English?

The BA (Hons.) English programme consists of a carefully planned curriculum taught by highly skilled mentors that, in addition to helping students master the subject matter, encourages them to engage deeply with the literary and performative cultures that are represented in English literature and cultural studies. The Programme opens doors to personal, academic, and professional accomplishment. Studying English has never been about savouring a few exquisite phrases and memorising antiquated literature. Learning English involves fully engaging with the language as a conduit for cultural legacy, a storehouse of ideas and feelings, and the attribute that most distinguishes us as human beings.

Students must complete core courses, subject specific elective courses, skill-development courses, interdisciplinary elective courses, and other graded learning activities that include a final year 'capstone' dissertation. The curriculum assures that students will engage deeply and extensively with a range of cultural forms, such as theatre, cinema, literature, and other artistic mediums. The students can take advantage of the flexibility provided by the university's multidisciplinary structure by acquiring credits and courses through several programmes and schools.
